Bean prices in the Lake region are excellent right now. We won't venture a guess about tomorrow or next week. However, when a hundred bushels of beans sells for more than $2.50, we know that the grower is making a good profit.

And to that he is entitled.

The Halloween carnival staged

by the Mothers' club of the Pa-

holo elementary school last Saturday night was a success. More than $75 in cash was realized from the evening's fun and frolic. It was money spent for an excellent

cause and those who attended enjoyed every minute.

We should have a school band in the Lake Okechobee region. Other communities, no more prosperous than ours, support excellent bands. During the present foot ball season several bands have visited this section. They came from schools where much talent is no more evident than it is in our own community. Let get behind them, and see what can be done about a band.

GILLIS ANNOUNCES

D. Stuart Gillis, of DePunk

Spring, president of the state senate, this week announces his candidate for a seat on the state supreme court. He will be opposed in the primary next spring

by Justice Rivers Buford, who remained in office after the state constitution was amended to remain as a member of the court.

The veteran lawman from De-

Waluon county has been favorably known throughout Florida as one of the most able men ever to sit as member of the state senate.

In the 1937 session he was appointed to that body in a manner that won him the esteem and respect of every member. His declarations were unbiased and fair

at all times.

A long career of public service

marks the life of D. Stuart Gillis.

He first went to the legislature from Walton county in 1918. He is at present serving his third term as state senator. He has been judge of the criminal court of record, assistant attorney general of Florida, and mayor of DePunk

Spring, the seat of the county in which he was born.

Voters of the state are going to hear and hear one of Florida's most able lawmen next spring when the campaign period arrives. In announcing his candidacy Mr. Gillis said: "I will make an active campaign along the lines in keeping with the dignity of the office to which I aspire."

Legislators who served with the senator from the third district

know him for his honesty and fairness of decision. And, if elected to a place on the supreme court,

the entire citizenry of the state

will be assured of fair and honest

opinions on the part of D. Stuart

Gillis.

"SUCKER LIST"

If you are among the citizens

who occasionally receive temptations of oil well or gold mine

stocks through the mail, then you

of the most prominent men in the country are enrolled on these "sucker lists."

Instead of losing your temper, the thing to do is to toss the letters into the fire unread. Even if they do not prevent other offers from being addressed to you, you must be sure to destroy these mail-order promoters "swamp" their lists and sell names to each other. So save your temper and be given by any teacher than the bait with which they attempt to catch you. Throw away their invitations to become a "sucker" and let them sweat their postage if they desire to do so.

WORTH TEACHING

The fact that there is no regular course in our public schools covering the conservation of wild life and natural resources does not mean that it is not worth being taught. No better instruction can be given by any teacher than the simple methods of protecting trees, birds and small animals. A few moments now and then to teach the importance of conservation. The same is true regarding all other forms of outdoor life.

It is said that approximately 15 million acres of land are being lost, utilizing the old roadway. It is also said that a period of two months is sufficient in which to destroy this new highway.

It is also known that condemnation proceedings, agreements for purchase, and other matters of this kind, are not subjects to be compromised in a short time.

However, the city of West Palm Beach, which has 20,000 inhabitants, has as well as the Everglades a decided interest, a public interest as well as a selfish one, in the completion of this roadway.

It recognized the hazard to human life, and through it press and the public, sought to eliminate that hazard.

However much may have been done, there is the semblance of the matter dragging out over a long period, a period entirely too long for the rapidity with which corrections should be made today.

Perhaps there is no one spot on which to focus a blame. But the fact still remains that one of the most dangerous pieces of road in Florida, if not in the entire country, has been closed to traffic.

Yet there is an instant demand for the early opening of a safe roadway for the day's traffic. Numberless persons today are required to drive by the lake and use the Conners Highway, making a long and dangerous journey.

The demand is insistent and the cause is justified. We must be aware of the world that we live in, and of our democracy. Yet seemingly a cause that has no opposition whatsoever requires these many months for achievement, and even then the achievement is some months ahead.

POULTRY MARKET PROBLEM STUDIED

ORLANDO, Nov. 4.—(FNS)—Delegates representing leading state poultry associations from all sections of Florida gathered in Orlando last week with officials of the Florida State Poultry Producers' association to discuss marketing problems and devise plans for promoting the sale of Florida poultry products.

Representatives of the leading chain food stores to the state were invited to sit in the conference and all of the larger grocery stores were represented.

Aid of the food stores was urged in helping to market the Florida turkey crop this fall and the chair stock men all agreed to feature Florida turkeys in their newspaper advertising and further to arrange for attractive "turkey window displays" throughout the state designed to stimulate thinking trade.

A check disclosed that the store operators were moving Florida eggs at top prices and were taking all they could secure. In cooperation with state poultrymen, the grocers will make an effort to work out a special campaign for the marketing of surplus eggs next spring to assist poultrymen in getting fair prices and prevent too great a market slump when the heavy production period arrives.

AS OTHER EDITORS SEE IT

ROAD 25

Late last winter these publications called attention to the unusually number of lives that were being lost on Road 25 on that stretch between 20-mile Bend and Belle Glade.

The Hon. Judge C. E. Chillingworth, of our circuit court, offered the situation to his earliest grand jury.

The mills of the gods that always grind slowly but which eventually grind exceedingly small, began turning. The wheels, at least, began revolving.

Again did the judge call for an investigation of what had been done to relieve the situation at the last grand jury. And the jury reported that all that was being done that could be done. It found no fault.

Still, while the wheels are grinding, in their slow way, the accomplishment is still a matter of months. And the wheels are grinding, in their slow way, the accomplishment is still a matter of months.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Ray.

While Justices of the Federal Supreme court are appointed by the president and serve for life or, until retirement, such is not the case with Justices of the Florida Supreme court, who are elected for six years.

Three Justices of the Florida high court, whose terms expire next year, must announce their candidacy for reelection not later than January 1 if they desire to remain in office. If nominated in the Democratic primary next May, their names will appear on the general election ballots next November.

The three justices whose terms expire are W. H. Ellis, Rivers Buford and Roy H. Chapman. Chapman, assisted by the governor to succeed the late Justice Fred H. Davis, if elected, would serve the unexpired two years of the Davis term, while Ellis and Buford would be reelected for six years each.

Supreme court seats are seldom contested, and the public as a whole knows very little about the court or its functions. The average voter, if asked to name those who judge the Florida bench, would find it difficult to do so.

The coming election should change the situation and it is probable that the voters will hear a great deal about the supreme court between now and next May, for while the justices whose terms expire have not yet officially announced, they probably will do so and will be called upon to do a bit of campaigning to retain their seats as all three of them undoubtedly face an opponent.

Two candidates have already announced in the following: Fred Davis, and before his successor was appointed, "Tom" Watson, attorney, pronounced his intention to be a candidate to fill the unexpired Davis term. This week D. Stuart Gillis, DePunk Springs, president of the senate, formally announced as a candidate in group 1. In all probability others will enter the race to the end that the Florida Supreme court will be a subject to cause and discuss for some time to come.

All of which is a very good thing. The trouble with you and me and a lot of other folks is we're too lazy and indifferent to inform ourselves on questions of real import. We just can't be bothered about the government, but we howl like timber wolves when an enemy of the same government bothers us. We vote now and then for a president, or governor, or sheriff, and pay little or no attention to senators, congressmen, representatives, commissioners and a raft of other minor officials. A real contest for Supreme Court judges ought to go a long way toward making us Supreme-Court-conscious.

The power and influence of the court over the lives and welfare of the people is set up to serve, justifies the selection of its members with the utmost care and consideration. Anything that will cause the average citizen to even THINK about it will be extremely helpful to the state.

In the passing of Chief Justice Fred H. Davis, Florida lost a brilliant and able jurist. In the appointment of Roy Chapman to fill the vacancy caused by his untimely death, the governor gave us a man able and qualified to fill a position of such importance.

Whether Chapman remains on the court bench or is to be succeeded by someone else, remains for the people to decide. In Tom Watson he will face a forceful and energetic campaigner and in seeking Davis' post, Watson enters the race against the Chapman. Gillis probably will oppose Ellis and will prove a mighty tough opponent.

Every member of the present court obtained his seat by constitutional appointment and none has ever been defeated for reelection. In fact, I don't believe, in the history of the court, that justice ever gained his seat other than by appointment, and none to my knowledge has ever been defeated at the polls. But it could happen and many believe the election will be broken in the coming election. Watson is a good man, Chapman any push-over, but he shouldn't be doubted—entirely. Gillis, regardless of whom he opposes, will run a mighty good race. In the meantime, "the supreme court is something for the voter to THINK about."

Everything may not come to the man who waits, but it does to the man who battles out and meets it half way.

People who take trouble to think don't have so much trouble to return to the world.

Supreme Court Has Gas Tax Acts Up For Consideration

State Road Department Asks High Tribunal For Decision

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 4 (FNS)—The constitutionality of special acts diverting gas tax money to the use of counties for other than state road purposes and the right of counties to continue to participate in the distribution of gas tax money after the provisions of the general act of 1931 have been met, was placed squarely before the supreme court Saturday by the State Road department.

In its answer, filed Saturday in an action by Jackson county against the state comptroller and the State Road department for an alternative writ in the supreme court, the State Road department alleges that Jackson county has received to date more than $500,000 from gas tax collections and now has a credit of more than $11,000 from the same source in the hands of the state treasurer. The answer shows that this county is entitled to receive only a total sum of $555,185.70 under the provisions of the 1931 general act.

The answer sets forth that the general law of 1931 provided for the return to each county of the amount expended by it in the construction of certain specified roads. A special act passed in 1935, diverted such gas tax money allocated for the construction of the roads designated in Jackson county by the 1931 act, for other and different purposes; and that because of this diversion none of this money, with the exception of $17,580.40, has been used or expended by the State Road department for the construction of such roads.

The State Road department asks the supreme court for instructions on two points. It asks if the special act of 1935, diverting gas tax money for purposes other than those specified in the 1931 general act, is constitutional. And it asks if Jackson county, which has already received more than the amount of gas tax due it under the provisions of the 1931 general act, is entitled to further participation in the distribution of gas money, which, under the terms of the 1931 act, should now be available for general road purposes.

The decision of the supreme court on these two points should settle the dispute which has been raging in the courts for months and give our state officials definite instructions for future guidance. It also will enable the State Road department to determine to a more definite degree how much money it will have available for the maintenance of existing roads and for the construction of additional roads.

Genial Sheriff Has His Troubles With Boat Anchored On Okeechobee

We who have been in these parts long enough to be "cracker-eyed" thefted don't care a thing about the "idea of March." What gets us down largely are the "Odes of October," only there is a difference in what the word means and how it is spelled. It isn't "Ode"—it's "Ode."

Any time we get over the hump in October down in this big overgrown patch of sawgrass and mud dunes, we have got a Chinaman's chance. The reason this year is such a tough one usually is because, it is that period of the year that comes between the actual end of summer and the first onset of the Yankee invaders for the winter.

September is always a bummer. Folks get back off their vacations broke—in some instances they are that way before they get, taking the trip at some one else's expense by the simple expedient of not paying their bills, and using the jack for their punt.

On their arrival home in September the kids have to be put in school, and in all likelihood they have to move to a different living quarters, to boot. A lot of small business outfits, like the Speah for instance, have to spend the month of September collecting tough accounts. Time spent in this manner doesn't lend much toward getting new business, and there really isn't much use going after it that month for it just naturally "sits."

So we come to October with nothing coming in but current expenses. "Nothing from nothing leaves you." So the "Odes of October."

Don't get the notion we are the only ones griping—by no means. We hear squawks from every side, but one of the most unique came from none other than Shurf Hy Lawrence.

It seems that a spell back he and Merle Williams, who lives out Pahokee way now, got the idea that a big house boat 'that had been used as a barracks of government men who had been working on the Lake Okeechobee dike, would make a swell rig out for a fishing camp. So same was acquired. Right now the boat could be properly named "Gloomy Daze," for at this writing, "Golden Days," is resting comfortably on or near the bottom of the lake with some three or four foot of rain water in it.

Shurf Hy had been putting off going out to the boat most of the month. He figured that a painter was busy out there getting it prettyed up for the sports-fishing season. The painter was there, but someone had left open a vent-lator, or a bird had built a nest in a drain pipe, or something of that nature. So a very sizeable chunk of the rainfall we were getting a spell back came to rest in the bottom of the boat. There was so much of it, in fact, that a pump dynamo and other equipment of this nature was completely submerged.

Lawrence got out there one day last week and the full situation hit him squarely between the ice. Instead of having a beautiful and unique sports fishing camp ready to get under way, he had a boat load of extra choice Okeechobee rain water.

Captain John Brophy took a gander at the submerged machinery and "towed" he could get it working again in a week or two. In the meantime the "Odes of October" take their toll from the sheriff for it will be the "Victims of November" ere the Golden Days turn on their gotten glints.—Sunshine Special.
